

mercer award

Peter L. Marks

Dr. Peter L. Marks of the Section of Ecology and Systematics of Cornell University was the recipient of the 1975 George Mercer Award presented annually by the Ecological Society of America in recognition of the year's outstanding publication of ecological research. The recipient of the Mercer Award is selected by a committee of his peers and the award is the highest form of recognition of excellence in ecological research. Cornell University should be commended not only for supporting the research of Dr. Marks, but also for a long and continuous history of outstanding ecological research and teaching.

From left: Peter Marks, W. Keith Kennedy (Dean, College of Agriculture and Life Sciences), Simon Levin (Chairman, Section of Ecology and Systematics), and H. T. Stinson (Acting Director, Division of Biological Sciences) all of Cornell University.